Dear Mariarosa,

Thank you very much for your kind letter. You mention in that a lot of interesting-sounding material which you will send me; have you posted it? I don't hope it has got lost, as I haven't received it yet. I am also looking forward to getting something in Italian, as I am trying to learn the language and am very curious to know how much ~~how much~~ I am able to read at the present stage. I am planning to visit Italy next year, and from that point of view it is also very good to know as much as possible about the women's movement in your country, which you can't get much information about here in Denmark. But I am in contact with a Swedish girl, ~~whom~~ who is participating in a book about the women's movement in European countries, and she has told me that there will also be a chapter about the situation in Italy (it will be published in a couple of months, and is written by an Italian girl living in Stockholm). I am hoping to be able to translate some material for you about the movement in Denmark, but as you surely know, it is always much more difficult to translate to another language - even if it is into English - than to translate to your own language. Please tell me if there are subjects which interest you specially.

from you

looking forward to hearing ~~forward~~ - and to get some material in the near future

yours

Toni

today I will also write to Selma James.

Dear Mariarosa Dalla Costa,

I have just to-day with great interest finished reading your article in the German edition of "Potere femminile e sovversione sociale", but as I am not perfect in German, I should like to ask you, if you have any possibility for sending me the English edition?

Here in Denmark we almost do not know anything about the womens movement in Italy (I am (together with my book "Woman and history") sending you the last number of the "Redstockings"-paper, which is concentrated on the movement in other countries) and therefore I think, that it might be a very good idea to try to translate something about it, and as I find that you are approaching the problems from a new and interesting angle, your article might be a ^{also} good starting point for further discussion.

And if you ^{also} have some other material about the womens movement in Italy, which you think could be of interest, I would ~~also~~ be very glad, if you would send it to me. I know some Italian - may be not enough to be able to translate from it, but I dont think it would be difficult to find somebody who can do it.

Have you yourself written anything after the abovementioned article?

If you are interested, I can also send you some informations about the movement in Denmark.

Looking forward to hearing from you

yours
