Dear sisters :

On July 12, 1976 you wrote me asking me for the authorisation to publish Wages Against Housework in Quebec. Due to family problems that kept me away from the US for some time, I asked Judy Ramirez to keep the correspondence with you concerning this publication. Unfortunately I have not heard anything from Judy and I don't even know whether you have published WAH or not.

If you are still interested from now on I would like to keep my contact with you directly, so that there won't be any more misunderstandings. Let me know if you have published WAH. The translation you had sent me, as I already told Judy at the time, had many problems and the sister who was in charge of the corrections, Nicole Cox, had suggested that entire sections be re-written. Today, however, there is a French translation which the Swiss sisters have produced for the book Le foyer de l'insurrection which is very good (I am sending you a copy of it in case you have not seen it yet). If you have not published WAH and still need a translation you could contact these sisters in Switzerland to see if you could reproduce WAH from their book or circulate the book itself in Canada.

I apologise again for all this delay; believe it did not depend on my will. I hope to receive soon news from you .

In sisterhood ,

Silvia Federici
