

Socialist Review SR

FE, cartella 3, 1

New Fronts Publishing Company
4228 Telegraph Avenue · Oakland, California 94609 (415) 653-6100

REVIEWS: 30 Carver St
Cambridge, Mass. 02138

In forthcoming issues:

Stanley Aronowitz,
"The Contemporary Labor Movement"

Fernando Claudin,
"The Crisis of Marxism"

Todd Gitlin,
"Television, the News, and the New Left"

Gloria Joseph, "Black
Women and the Black Family"

Ruth Milkman, "Trade Unions and the Sexual Division of Labor in the Contemporary U.S."

Robert Shaffer,
"Women and the Communist Party in the 1930s"

Articles on:

- housing struggles ●
in the U.S.
- Cambodia, China, ● and Vietnam
- Mexico ●
- zionism, ●
anti-semitism, and the left
- contemporary black ● politics

Dear Friend,

Your subscription to Socialist Review has expired, with the last issue you received. Please renew now, in order to be sure not to miss any issues.

We've listed some of our forthcoming articles to give a sense of what we have planned for coming issues. SR will continue to provide thoughtful analysis of contemporary American politics and culture, in its international context, along with serious historical and theoretical analyses of important problems. We're confident that we can continue to contribute to building a mass, democratic left in this country, and to treat subjects of major concern to leftists internationally.

Please renew your subscription as soon as you can. If you simply don't have the money — or your checkbook — right now, we'll renew your subscription and bill you. We know that you'll miss getting SR if you allow your subscription to lapse — and we're certain that we would miss you. So send your check in today, with the enclosed card, in the postage paid envelope. We look forward to hearing from you.

Thanks,

Harry Chotiner

Socialist Review

RATES:

- ___ 1 yr. ($15)
- ___ 2 yrs. ($26)
- ___ Sustaining
subscriber ($30 or more)

p. s. Why not take a minute, while sending in your renewal, to comment on our recent issues and the general direction of the journal; use the back of this letter. Getting your comments and criticisms helps us to improve SR in ways that make it more valuable for you.

Please disregard this notice if you've already renewed.